

SUPPORT

Portal > Knowledgebase > Product & Growing > What is the difference between indica and sativa?

What is the difference between indica and sativa?

Raoul - 2017-04-07 - in Product & Growing

Both scientifically and legally there is no difference between sativa and indica; all cannabis plants are considered to be Cannabis sativa. In general terms it describes a broad category which indicates the strain's place in the 'spectrum' of cannabis. These differences can be noticed in effects, qualities and even the growth-patterns. A short summary of the differences have been listed below.

For more information ask the Experts on our weedportal!